

To Whom it may concern:

If the FCC does decide to pass a federal law concerning telephone privacy laws, here are some things it should consider.

1. That the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law,
2. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved my time at home by eliminating any and all unwanted soliciting phone calls,
3. In fact, since signing up for Indiana's list, I have received no unwanted soliciting calls, whereas prior to the list, I would receive half a dozen a week,
4. The Indiana bill allows consumers to make a choice, rather than annoying solicitors. It may not seem like much in the grand scheme of things, but the Indiana bill has improved the lives of everyone on the list.

Thank you for your consideration of my comments.
